

Bio

Jamie Black has been an actor in Chicago for over 19 years. He has performed with many theatre companies including Factory Theatre, Noble Fool Theatre and National Theatre For Children. His first solo show was produced by Bailiwick Repertory and played to audiences across the country. Jamie premiered his current solo show at MPAACT's Solo Jams Spring series. He won National Artist of the Year at the St. Lou Fringe Festival last summer. He will make his International debut this July in Toronto. Jamie is a founding member of Soul Fools, an African American sketch comedy group. His television credits include The Chelsea Handler Show, Conspiracy: Martin Luther King, Jr. and Boss.