- A production still from Many Happy Returns, at a prior venue.
- A group of people standing in a small, intimate, dark-panelled room. Some are dressed formally; some are dressed in 1920s period costume; some are dressed casually in modern-day summer clothing. In the foreground is a female person kneeling, dramatically appealing to a standing female person who has her back to the camera. A group of keenly interested audience members stand among those emoting, looking deeply engaged. In the background we see another dialogue happening between a performer and other implied audience members. Off to the sides, we see partial images of other people mingling at a party. In the background, among guests, are sneak peaks of the décor, featuring a column, lighting sconces, pictures of 1920s women's on the wall, and a dark red couch.

- Six female people dressed in colourful 1920s dresses standing on either side of, and sitting on, a bench. They convey the fun, mystery, and glamour of the show, Many Happy Returns. The person in the foreground, left, is raising a champagne glass to the viewer. The picture is taken on a diagonal, such that one background wall moves from down left to up middle in the photo, and the other moves from centre to down right. The background is, on the left, a brick wall with wooden bookshelves with various books and knick-knacks. On the right, the background is a green and blue stained glass window, which gives the picture a blue/green haze.
