

Synopsis

'Comedy Records Presents: Jay & Eytan' is a one-hour blend of stand-up and sketch comedy written & performed by New York based comedians, Jay Wells L'Ecuyer & Eytan Millstone. The comedic duo have formal training in sketch comedy by SNL and Second City alumni, Joe Flaherty & Robin Duke, and years of experience in stand-up comedy, taking sketch into stand-up clubs all across North America. Their show is packed with energy, countless punchy premises, and just the right amount of spice. Jay & Eytan bounce from quick off beat impressions, to honest & relatable stand up, to fully choreographed musical numbers, going right for the jugular when it comes to the laughs. One theme that rings true throughout the show is "Adulthood". Jay & Eytan are in their mid 30's now, and they are trying to figure out how to "adult" in a world where they so desperately want to remain silly and youthful. Be it through getting married, socializing, or discovering the 30's hangover versus the 20's hangover, growing up is something they ultimately have to come to terms with. Through this one-hour rapid fire bombardment of laughter, there is still a clear punk rock rebelliousness on full display. Whether it's a well-placed "fuck" (like the one you just read), outlandish costume changes, or some downright shocking moments, the audience will have absolutely no idea where the show is going next!

This act has been over 10 years in the making, but Jay & Eytan have been crafting this most recent show since the beginning of 2018. They haven't taken the stage together for a headlining set in Toronto since 2012 when they made the move to NYC, and because of the theatrical elements to their otherwise straight up comedy show, they'll feel right at home at the Toronto Fringe Festival.
