Alt text / image description	Black-and-white photograph set inside a gothic cathedral with tall, ornate stained-glass windows and weathered stone-and-brick walls. Two performers in period satin gowns stand close together in an intimate embrace. The performer on the left, in an off-shoulder gown, cradles and steadies the performer on the right, who is partially suspended in decorative rope harnesses tied around the torso, hips, and one thigh, and who leans into the embrace with eyes closed. The suspended performer wears an elaborate dark wig and a satin gown that slips from the shoulders, partly revealing the chest, with a spiral tattoo visible on the upper arm. Suspension lines run upward out of frame. The overall mood is tender, romantic, and theatrical.

Alt text / image description	Colour photograph in a candlelit, gothic room with a black brick wall, an ornate dark wooden fireplace lined with lit white pillar candles, a gilded classical painting, and a brass candle sconce. One performer is in a partial rope suspension, seated in mid-air with the legs raised high and held apart by ropes rigged to an overhead point, wearing a black bodysuit and black leg coverings, mouth open in a dramatic expression. A second performer lies on their back on the deep-red floor directly below and presses their raised legs and hands up against the suspended performer, balancing and supporting them in an acrobatic counterpose. A coil of rope rests on the floor nearby. The scene is dramatic, athletic, and sensual.
