

Missed Metaphor Productions

Company Bio

Missed Metaphor Productions is a Toronto-based theatre company producing original Canadian content with every show. Formed in late 2017, Skye Ashby, Pamela Barker, and Norman Hussey wanted to work collaboratively with the many talented artists they've met throughout their years of theatre experience. The team expanded soon after to include the tremendous talents of Mike Argue-Greene and Leila Bannister. They produced their first show “A Canticle of Light” by KT Bryski independently in May/June 2018 and sold out the entire run. This will be their first Fringe production, but they already have another production booked for October 2019 at the Theatre Passe Muraille backspace; a tragic horror in two acts entitled The Cult of Dalkhilu.
