MACBETH MUET

Created by Marie-Hélène Bélanger, Jon Lachlan Stewart and William Shakespeare

"This is the silliest production of Macbeth I've ever seen. And it is well-crafted silliness." - Onstage Ottawa

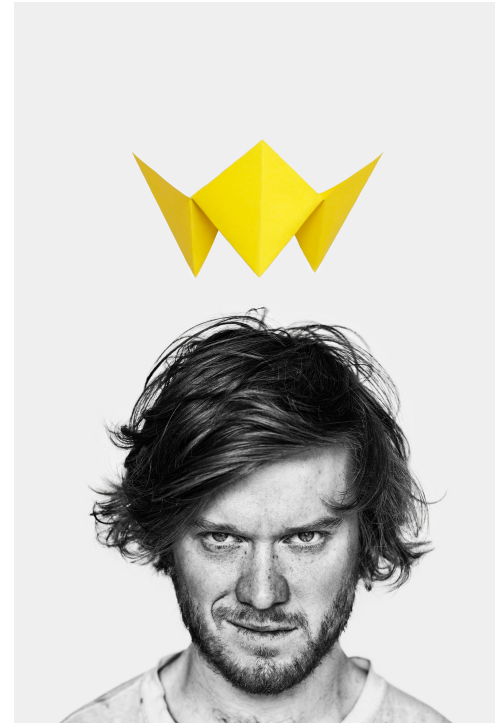

La Fille Du Laitier, a Montreal-based theatre delivery service, brings you their twist on a Shakespeare classic, MACBETH MUET: an entirely textless reimagination of this bloody tale of ambition.

This play is directed by Jon Lachlan Stewart, creator of the Nextstage 2015 hit BIG SHOT.

After winning a great battle, Macbeth is given a vision by three witches that he will be king. Classic. Soon, his wife gets involved, pushing the once-loyal soldier to pursue what becomes a barren dream with a giant trail of blood behind it.

In La Fille Du Laitier's interpretation of Macbeth, the entire play is set on a huge dining table, where paper plates, candlesticks and chalices become murderers, kings and magical witches. In a virtuosic, spartan-run of the entire play, the stage becomes a hot mess, laden with blood, paper scraps and eggs. Yes, eggs.
