

EX-CHANGE OF WORDS | a play by Danny Sylvan

SYNOPSIS:

"EX-CHANGE OF WORDS" centers around Curtis, a 42 year old anxious avoidant and over-thinker, who is grieving the loss of the love of his life, while trying to maintain a friendship with his most recent ex-lover, and has simultaneously entered a new romantic relationship as 'the other man' (or 'the mistress'). This piece, which is loosely inspired by true events, explores the complexities that can be coupled with gay dating, age-gap relationships, interracial relationships, and infidelity. It explores grief and the intricacies of 'moving on', as well as navigating transitions in friendships and the differences between boundary setting and enabling mistreatment.
