

Horseface By Alex Dallas 2019

This one woman dramedy and comedic, yet poignant monologue should resonate with anyone who has taken in the events of the Me Too movement. It starts with Alex meeting a manspreader on a train, what ensues after that and a collection of timely stories of Alex's life from a young girl aged 8 to the present day as a mature 61 year old woman.

With stories set in her schooldays, her teenage attempts at being cool and her various encounters with men both good and bad, funny and dangerous, we follow, "Sandra", as her parents call her, through thick and thin as she tries to navigate her way in the world that seems firmly against her gender.

Both hilarious and moving, the show encompasses the female experience and challenges all of us to consider our contribution to inequality and misogyny.

Jane Fonda and Dan Savage feature with advice, as "Sandra" tries to wrestle with her recurring nightmares , anal sex and whether or not she has the balls to accost a stranger on a train!
