

Murmurs is, at heart, a father and son story.
Acknowledging a big fish in a little pond and a part of Canadian Theatre History.
Relating death to life, life to history, and looking forward, to what information matters amongst the daily inundation.

Three great writers and contributors to current thought, Brene Brown, Barbara Coloroso and Yuval Noah Harari are mentioned as gems in a tapestry of stories about childhood and growing up with a talented and accomplished father.

How to find happiness in the information overload of today.
