

What happens when you ask comedians and storytellers to build a set around a specific tarot card? Find out in this one-of-a-kind standup and storytelling show where every performer draws inspiration from a different card in the deck.

The Cards We're Dealt is a standup and storytelling show that invites performers to build original sets inspired by a tarot card and its meaning. From love and heartbreak to ambition, chaos, transformation, identity and unexpected twists of fate, each performer interprets a different card through their own comedic voice.

No two shows are exactly alike. With a different mix of cards, stories and perspectives each night, audiences can expect a show that's funny, vulnerable, insightful and unpredictable.

No prior tarot knowledge needed! Whether you're a tarot enthusiast or skeptic, this is a chance to see life's universal themes reimagined through comedy.

Will you be dealt The Lovers, The Tower, Death, or something entirely unexpected? There's only one way to find out.
