

Vinay Sagar is the creator and main performer of the show, '10,000 Digits of Pi'. He's a graduate of the Second City Conservatory Program (2018) and has performed in several improv festivals around the world: Sweden Improv Festival (2022), Detroit Improv Festival (2019), Baltimore Improv Festival (2018, 2019), Australian Improv Festival (2019) and Palm Beach Improv Festival (2018).

Vinay has been improvising for over 6 years and started doing clown in 2019. His first solo show, 'Vinay Solo: An Idiot's Story' was sold out at Sweet Action Theatre and has become a 'meme' and still talked about by the people who were there. Mostly due to the length (went over by almost an hour) and also due to the fact that Vinay started the show by saying he was dying from cancer (he wasn't - some people are still upset about it to this day).

Outside of performing, Vinay graduated with a BSc in Nanotechnology Engineering (2012) from the University of Waterloo. As part of the degree, he did internships at Facebook, Hokkaido University and Harvard Medical School. He currently heads the analytics department at Inkbox.

Vinay is thrilled to combine his love of mathematics and clown in the '10,000 Digits of Pi' show!
