

Paco Erhard, first photo

File name: Paco Erhard, graffiti, sitting.jpg

Photo credit: svensindt photography

In the photo: Paco Erhard, German comedian

Text description: German comedian Paco Erhard, olive shirt and cap, sitting against a wall full of graffiti street art, looking into the camera with a mischievous smile on his face

Paco Erhard, second photo

File name: Paco Erhard, graffiti, standing.jpg

Photo credit: svensindt photography

In the photo: Paco Erhard, German comedian

Text description:

German comedian Paco Erhard, head sideways, looking into the camera out of the corner of his eyes in a challenging way. Wearing a shirt saying “jazz poetry drugs” (large) and “sur la route, sulla strada, en el camino” – French, Italian, and Spanish for “On The Road”, in reference to Jack Kerouac’s classic novel. Paco Erhard originally wanted to be a writer in the footsteps of Jack Kerouac – except the misogyny.

Paco Erhard, third photo

File name: Paco Erhard, suitcase, Berlin subway.jpg

Photo credit: Christiane Patric photography

In the photo: Paco Erhard, German comedian

Text description:

German comedian Paco Erhard in tight grey pants and a black leather jacket, smiling and looking into the camera, sitting on a suitcase that has stickers from many countries on it. The location: the Berliner Straße subway station in Berlin, shiny red tiles in the background, the “Berliner Straße” sign partly covered by the yellow subway train coming into the station behind Paco.