

For the first time ever, Good News, Toronto! will be performing in the Toronto Fringe Festival! The July event of this monthly show is pulling no punches – audiences can expect to enjoy wild sketches, wilder personalities, and REAL NEWS STORIES! Featuring a hilarious and diverse cast, Good News, Toronto! aims to branch out and share its brand of comedy with a worldwide audience.

Since its inception in 2013, Good News, Toronto! has been making audiences laugh for over 8 years. The show has hosted a variety of Toronto's most talented performers and has incorporated elements of stand-up, sketch comedy, music, games, and audience participation. Primarily performed live inside the Comedy Bar at Bloor & Ossington, Good News, Toronto! had to quickly pivot to an online-style performance when the COVID pandemic hit.

In a similar vein to Saturday Night Live's Weekend Update or Last Week Tonight with John Oliver, the foundation of Good News, Toronto! is the parody of news reports, with award-nearing segments such as Dick News, WTFTO, and The Doug Ford Watch™. What sets it apart from other news parodies however, is the inclusion of topical sketches, creative videos, and improvised segments interspersed throughout. Korri Birch, creator and producer of the show, calls it a "house party in a newsroom." "It's good dumb fun!"

If you're looking for some Good News (and aren't we all), don't miss this witty, informative, and downright crazy good time!
