

Political Satire meets The Climate Crisis in

You can Do it, Put Your MASK Into It!

A Digital Sketch Revue

You Can Do It, Put Your MASK Into It! is a show about changing climates; global, political, and epidemiological. Following the success of the 2019 show It's getting Hot in Here! Potato Potato Presents is taking political sketch comedy to new, digital, levels- and it's just what the doctor ordered. It's a bandaid solution for the woes that plague us (sorry), a chance to laugh at the things that make us ugly-cry (or angry-scream), and a fun little placeholder for social interactions as we wait for the opportunity to gather again.

With over a year stuck indoors, we're feeling a little stir crazy- and we're not the only ones. Our country gets more divided by the day, our politicians are too busy pointing fingers to take meaningful action and, of course, the climate crisis poses an imminent threat to the future of humanity. You Can Do It, Put your MASK into It! is a reaction to all that and more. It's a call to action for Canadians to be better, and an attempt to face the terrifying reality of the world today, using humour to soften the blow.

Potato Potato combines the talents of some of the brightest up-and-coming artists (at least in our opinion) from across Canada to spread political sketch comedy from coast to coast. Potato Potato is: Daniel Bagg (Co-Founder Filament Incubator), Nicole DeAngelis, Emily Anne Fullerton, Rami Khan (Ginny & Georgia), Ashlyn Kusch, Thomas McDevitt (Theatre Parallax), Sam Mercury, Erika Rogstad, Lizzie Song.

Prepare for sketches about politics, climate change, terrible white people and, of course, our favourite new threat to the human race. Oh- and a cheesy song or two...
