

Divine Monster

A distraught young Canadian musician rushes into Paris's famous Père Lachaise cemetery, seeking respite. Lost and despondent, she finds herself at the grave of the famous French actress Sarah Bernhardt. Sarah's ghost appears. She is trapped in the cemetery, unable to move on because of unfinished business. Other ghosts round out the cast. One knows of a magic resurrection ritual, but it can only happen under a rare blood moon. Tonight is the night. But a lot happens before the time for the ritual arrives.

Sarah and Martha share the details of their lives, leading to a passionate debate about art, fame and success. Sarah receives a glimpse into the world of the 21st century. Martha learns of the challenges Sarah endured despite having a successful career and achieving worldwide fame.
